A ride to remember

Cyclists biking 4,000 miles to honor fallen servicemen

A group of veterans rode nearly 2,400 miles on motorcycles to honor a fallen hero last week.

Riders from the Tribute to Fallen Soldiers Memorial Torch Motorcycle Ride stopped at the home of Dennis Kovacs in Romulus last Tuesday and presented him with a memorial plaque of distinguished service honoring his granddaughter.

Army SPC Holly K. McGeogh, who was killed in action during Operation Iraqi Freedom on Jan. 31, 2004, was honored by the group at a short ceremony during which the plaque was presented to her grandfather.

The riders, who began their 22-day, 4,000 mile ride to Arlington National Cemetery July 14 in Eugene, Oregon, stopped at Romulus City Hall before traveling to Kovacs' home for one of the 50 daily Fallen Soldier Home Visits they have planned along the trip.

Kovacs said he was more than surprised by the arrival of the huge fleet of motorcycles on his front lawn.

"Unbelievable, it just shocked me, you know, the whole family was shocked," Kovacs said. "They're all soldiers and they're all honoring the ones that did not get home," he said.

Holly McGeogh was only 19 when she was killed in action in Iraq. Her grandfather said that he was "very proud" of her and her service and was thankful for the riders keeping her memory alive. She was the first female officer from Michigan killed in the conflict. The cyclists are traveling 200-250 miles each day stopping at two or three homes daily to make visits to the families of those who lost their lives while in the armed services. They are cooperating with local Elks Lodges, American Legions and Veterans of Foreign Wars groups for nightly accommodations including areas for air mattresses, cots and sleeping bags they are hauling with them on the trek. The groups are also supplying the riders with "potluck" dinners nightly.

The riders plan to visit 50 homes of fallen veterans in more than a dozen states before arriving for a memorial service at Arlington where they will light the memorial torch from the one they are bringing with them.

They expect to arrive at Arlington on Aug. 4.

A day of remembrance Families Against Narcotics hosts Overdose Awareness Day

Julie Brown
Staff Writer

Remembering those lost to drug overdoses is the goal of a Saturday, Aug. 31, Northwest Wayne Families Against Narcotics (FAN) event. The third annual Overdose Awareness Day will take place from 6-9 p.m. at Heritage Park, 46000 Heritage Parkway in Canton (South Pavilions 4 and 5, and Amphitheater; south of the Summit on the Park).

“We feel it is important to reduce stigma and allow people to honor loved ones who have died before their time due to their addiction. It is an opportunity for our chapter to reach out and actively support people in the community,” commented Judge Laura Mack of the 29th District Court in Wayne.

This is the third Northwest Wayne FAN Overdose Awareness Day, part of a wider international celebration. Mack serves on the board of directors for Northwest Wayne FAN.

On Aug. 31, there will be live music, speakers, and a candlelight vigil. Visitors are asked to bring a photo of their loved one for the memorial display.

In her 29th District Court, Mack said she deals with substance use disorders daily, most commonly alcohol. She noticed more arrests such as retail fraud and possession of paraphernalia relating to heroin in use about 10 years ago. In talking with other judges about how to handle defendants, she learned about issues of addiction and withdrawal.

Mack said she must make decisions daily about those in police custody facing charges related to narcotic use, determining if a personal/no cash bond or holding the individual in jail until their court date is the best or safest choice.

“These are issues that come up constantly when dealing with people struggling with addiction. After they are sentenced, the probation department deals with issues like rehab, drug testing” and relapse prevention, Mack said. “It’s easy to lock people up in jail for violating the law, but it does nothing to help that person.”

After alcohol, she most often sees addiction to opioids (pills and heroin); cocaine; marijuana; amphetamines like Adderal; benzodiazepines like Xanax; and synthetics like Kraton and bath salts.

Northwest Wayne FAN also sponsors monthly forums offering information on addiction and recovery. Most attendees are family members of someone suffering from substance use disorder, including those who have lost a child or grandchild.

At the 6:30-8:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 5, meeting, author/interventionist Debra Jay will speak at the meeting at the Summit on the Park in Canton.

The monthly forums also are attended by people in recovery and professionals in treatment professions, judges, and members of law enforcement. The Northwest Wayne FAN also hosts a Family Support Group and Grief Support Group.

Both the Aug. 5 and Aug. 31 events are free and include refreshments.

Mack praises her fellow board members as “caring, energetic, intelligent and dedicated.” FAN is a relatively new organization, she said, and is growing.

District superintendent honored with public safety award

Canton Township Police Sgt. David Eyl, left, School Resource Ofc. Andrew Colthurst, Monica Merritt, School Resource Ofc. Melissa Andes, and School Resource Ofc. Ethan Walsh celebrate the National Association Award for School Safety.

Monica Merritt, superintendent of the Plymouth-Canton Community School District, was awarded with the 2019 Chief Nicholas C. Derzis Safe Schools Leadership Award from the National Association of School Resource Officers (NASRO) recently.

The prestigious award was presented to Merritt at the 29th NASRO Annual School Safety Conference, in Pigeon Forge, TN. The Safe School Leadership Award is presented to those individuals who are willing to support and further develop their School Resource Officer partnership, exemplify leadership, innovation, dedication and proactive measures to enhance the safety of their school community. Merritt was hired as district superintendent on July 1, 2016 and immediately assumed a proactive leadership role toward improving the district partnership with law enforcement, according to a statement from the organization. She recognized potential vulnerabilities that existed in the district, and began enhancing security infrastructure and providing extensive training for students and staff at all levels.

“Superintendent Merritt’s comprehensive approach to school safety provides the district with the foundation and building blocks necessary to enhance and sustain a safe and positive learning environment,” said Canton Public Safety Director Joshua Meier. “Our Public Safety Department is grateful for her leadership, knowledge and expertise when addressing the safety and well-being of the students and staff of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.”

BELLEVILLE - ROMULUS

Book Mobile provides pages and popsicles

Last Tuesday was the maiden voyage of the Romulus Community Schools Book Mobile that delivered more than 300 books to children in Romulus and Inkster. The goal was to promote reading among students during the summer months.

“Families came out to the Book Mobile at various times throughout the day to show their support,” said Karensa Smith, director of Grants and Curriculum for the district. “There were even a few families who missed us at their stop and followed us to the next stop!”

The Book Mobile visited 17 stops in the neighborhoods near Halecreek, Romulus, Wick and Barth elementary schools. Smith, and a team of learning specialists from various Romulus Schools delivered culturally-conscious books, school supplies, and popsicles in the summer heat. Teachers joining Smith around town included Gerilynn Baty, Rob Baty, Sarah Carter, Pia Chasney, and Dave Pelc.

“It was great to see kids from our schools out in our community,” said Baty from Barth Elementary. “The Book Mobile was a great success because it helped to build relationships in the community.”

Baty said she also told all of her child's friends about the Book Mobile to help spread the word to non-district students.

The concept of the Book Mobile was the product of a recent planning meeting with Smith team of learning specialists. Much planning went into Book Mobile's launch, including ordering hundreds of pencil pouches, erasers, book marks and other items.

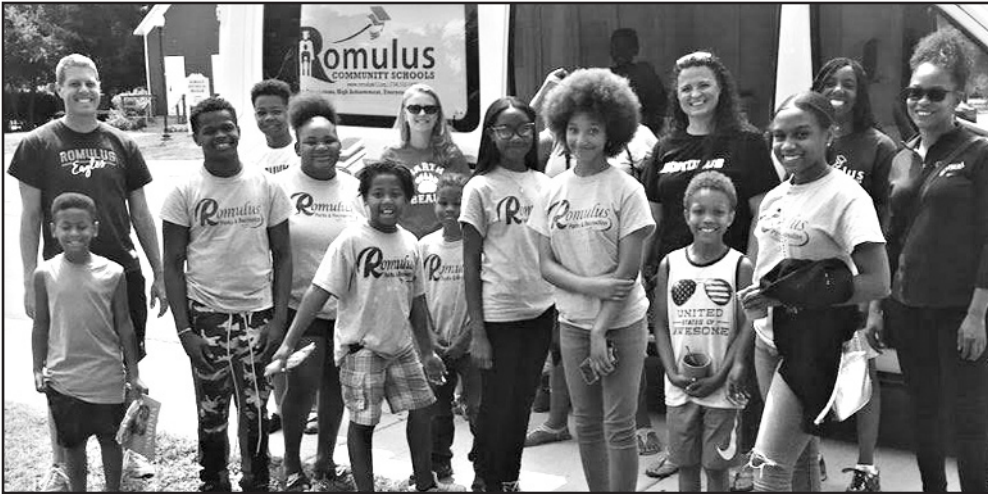

“Wick Elementary's Rob Baty suggested that we should get books into the hands of our students over the summer and from there, the team continued to brainstorm on how to make the Book Mobile a reality,” explained Smith.

The Book Mobile team met one parent who donated books from their family to share to other young readers.

“I was very impressed at the high quality books that were given to the children and it was a very positive event,” said Lela Dunn, who brought her grandson to one of the stops. “I thought it was great the Book Mobile distributed free school supplies to the children.”

Dunn was happy to report her grandson, who is a student at Romulus Early Childhood Center this summer, has already begun reading his book to her.

“To get books in front of our students so they could continue reading over the summer was very rewarding,” explained Smith. “I was literally smiling all day long! I was ecstatic about the large turnout at our Book Mobile stops.”

Teachers and learning specialists from the Romulus Community Schools staffed the first-ever Romulus Book Mobile that made stops last Tuesday delivering books and popsicles.

Romulus Relay for Life event set to begin Saturday

A free day of family fun and fundraising begins at 10 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 3, at Romulus Senior Center Park, located behind the Senior Center at 36525 Bibbins.

The Romulus Relay for Life is the signature fundraiser of the American Cancer Society, a nationwide voluntary health organization dedicated to eliminating cancer.

Meanwhile, there are activities and attractions all day, including:

- Relay opens with a salute to cancer survivors, who take the first lap while supporters cheer them on with a bubble salute. Survivors and their caregivers will be given the royal treatment with a free brunch, massages, family photos and more. NORTHVILLE - WESTLAND

Repairs to Northville neighborhood streets begin

Repairs to several neighborhood streets in the City of Northville are expected to begin this week.

Nagle Paving Co., of Novi, was approved by members of the city council as the contractor to repair and replace streets during the 2019 construction season. The contracted repairs to 1.7 miles of pavement are expected to cost $1,031,473.

The summer and fall work will commence at Lexington Court and Glenhill Drive where the street will be milled and filled and Morgan Boulevard where the street will be reconstructed. A 250-foot section of Cady Street will be reconstructed and an additional eight parking spaces added. Morgan Circle, Morgan Court, MacDonald Drive, Taft Road and Baseline Road will be milled and filled.

Officials in Northville were forced to seek alternate solutions to the paving project when no bids were received for the 2019 Local Road Reconstruction and Rehabilitation Program. Department of Public Works Director Loyd Cureton said Northville wasn't alone in not getting responses to their request for bids. Other local municipalities also came up empty-handed.

"This was due to several factors, including significant existing workloads, rain delays, the loss of key personal, and difficulty finding subcontractors," Cureton said.

He added that following a meeting with representatives from Nagle construction, an alternate schedule and a modified scope of work was negotiated. City engineering consultant, Fleis & VandenBrink, reviewed and recommended the city proceed with Nagle based on the quote for the work provided by the company. The engineering consultant noted the unit prices provided and total cost proposed were consistent with recent bidding throughout the region. Nagle has an extensive background in asphalt paving and road rehabilitation and reconstruction projects throughout metro Detroit and the company has completed many projects successfully in the City of Northville, officials noted.

Engineering costs for this project is estimated at 5.5 percent for design and 8.5 percent construction observation, for a total fee of $144,406. The contract documents were reviewed and approved by both the city attorney and the city insurance agent.

The remaining street repair work originally planned for the summer of 2019 will be rebid in November, with work expected to be completed in this budget year, officials said.

Officer of the Year

Captain Dustin Krueger was publicly commended recently for being voted "Police Officer of the Year" by his peers from the City of Northville Police Department. During 2018, Krueger served as acting police chief for approximately five months and "did an outstanding job" according to officials. Police Chief Alan Maciag detailed Krueger's multiple accomplishments to members of the city council prior to the award presentation. Mayor Ken Roth congratulated Krueger and presented him with a plaque and certificate. He was also congratulated by members of the city council, other officers and his family who were in attendance.

Appointment to development finance authority approved

Brendan White has been appointed to the Westland Local Development Finance Authority (LDFA) where he will serve a four-year term ending July 1, 2023.

White is a current intern with the City of Westland and has been working closely with the Economic Development Department on the Redevelopment Ready Community Certification Program. White has worked for Panetta's Landscape Supplies for six years and will graduate in August with a degree in public administration from Eastern Michigan University.

The LDFA board comprises 11 members with seven members appointed by the mayor and subject to confirmation by members of the city council, two representing schools, one representing Wayne County and one representing Wayne County Community College. Members are appointed to four-year terms. The primary objective is to encourage local development to prevent conditions of unemployment and to promote economic growth. Regularly scheduled board meetings take place the third Friday of March, June, September and December each year.

"Brendan has proven himself as a team player during his internship with the city and I am confident that he will make a great contribution to the LDFA board," commented Mayor William R. Wild.

Anyone interested in serving on a Westland board or commission, can find a complete list of vacancies, information, requirements and explanations on each and an application on www.cityofwestland.com by clicking on the 'Get Involved' icon. Applications can be submitted electronically or paper applications can be printed from the website and returned to Westland City Hall.
